
Arsenal 1 Hull City 2

Posted by dave - 2008/09/28 13:41

This has to be a game that eclipses even the wembley victory that took us into the premier league, beating Arsenal at The Emirates.

However, we are a premier league team and they are just another team in our league, lets not get over-awed. We deserve to be where we are and we should expect to compete well against all the teams we play.

I get as excited as anyone else as week after week we climb to new heights of success and so we should, we have waited long enough to get here. Nor should we have the attitude of " enjoy it while it lasts", we are here to stay.

So lets not consider ourselves as outsiders doing well, but rather as a premier league team that has nothing to fear and who expects to win.
